Thoughts for Today's Readings

To the Point: A common reaction to this gospel is to feel affronted: it really does seem unfair that all the laborers receive the same wage for unequal amounts of work. But Jesus is once again telling us that God's logic does not follow ours. Our sense of justice is too small. God's generosity is always bigger than what we had envisioned, and then is bigger again still. Part of the problem is that most of us identify with the early laborers in the story. We believe we have put in the work and really deserve the good things God gives us and will give us. But none of us really deserves the gifts of God; they are not something that can be earned but are by their nature free and gracious gifts. And God promises us the free and undeserved generosity that the latecomers receive in this parable.

To Experience: In many ways, it is fair and just that the world does not operate on the divine logic demonstrated in the gospel. Employers should not work like the landowner in this parable. A job that paid the same amount for an evening of labor as for a back-breaking dawn-to-dusk day would be what we call a toxic workplace. But the kingdom of heaven does not work like earth; the generosity that awaits us there is beyond our wildest imaginings.

1. Do you identify more with the early risers or the latecomers in the gospel parable? How does that make you feel about the landowner's unthinkable generosity?
2. Our human interactions would not be healthy if we always followed the example of this parable, but how can you bring God's generosity more fully to life?
3. In the second reading, Paul writes of the fruitful labor he has left in this life. What fruitful labor do you feel God has given to you? What makes you feel that you are participating in God's life-giving work?

"Behold, I send an angel before you to guard you on the way and to bring you to the place that I have prepared"
Exodus 23:20 (ESV).

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ,

This Friday, September 29, Holy Mother Church celebrates the Feasts of the Archangels. Shortly after, on Monday, October 2, is the liturgical celebration of the Holy Guardian Angels.

We do not talk about angels often enough. And there are many misunderstandings about what angels are and what their role is. The word "angel" literally means "messenger." And we see this often in Sacred Scripture. Throughout the Old Testament, God sends angels to bring important messages to His people. The angels also have a role in bringing messages back to God.

Something to notice is that almost every time an angel appears in the Bible, the first words are "do not be afraid." This tells us that angels aren't cute, cuddling and harmless as they are often depicted on greeting cards and works of art. Rather, angels are mighty and fearsome.

This helps us to understand the second role of angels, and that is as heavenly protectors. The angel of the Lord was sent to protect and watch over the Hebrew people during the Exodus, and the archangel Raphael was sent to protect Tobias on his journey in the book of Tobit.

Lastly, angels offer ceaseless worship before the throne of God in heaven.

As messengers, angels should be called upon as powerful partners in prayer. We should be asking our own Guardian Angel to pray for us and to help us.

As mighty and fearsome protectors, we should be calling upon our Guardian Angels in times of danger and temptation. But it is important to realize that our Guardian Angels will respect our free will and permit us to experience the consequences of our actions. So it is not a failure of our Guardian Angel if we deliberately place ourselves in the occasion of sin, and act surprised when our Guardian Angel does not prevent us from sinning.

Our angels are also primarily concerned about spiritual dangers, rather than physical dangers. Although they are powerful protectors from both kinds of dangers.

Lastly, angels help us to offer God fitting worship. Although we do not usually see them at Mass, nonetheless they gather with us. We use their songs in our worship of God such as when we sing "Glory to God in the highest," which the angels sang at the birth of Jesus. Scripture also shows us that the angels ceaselessly sing "Alleluia, alleluia," and "Holy, Holy, Holy..." around God's throne in heaven. Both Eucharistic Prayers One and Four highlight the role that angels have in our own acts of worship.

May the Lord send His Holy Angels to watch over you,
Fr. Bill

Archangels: Michael, Gabriel, and Raphael

The Catholic Church recognizes the existence of only three Archangels, or the three mentioned in the Scriptures: Michael ("Who is like God?"), Gabriel ("God's Power") and Raphael ("God's Doctor"). Given this, who and what are the Archangels?

The existence of angels is a truth of the faith. These are incorporeal beings, who are spiritual, perfect, created by God at the dawn of time for the purpose of being his servants and messengers. They have always and forever contemplated the face of God, are ready to rush to his every command, as attentive listeners and executors of His Word.

They are therefore spirits that exist for Him and in Him, who are, however, also close to humans, through the faithfulness between the will of the Most High and his creatures.

Angels therefore live in the contemplation of God and act as His messengers.

And the Archangels?

Since ancient times, we have considered the fact that the angelic hosts are organized into a sort of Heavenly Court, in which the angels have different ranks and graces. The three Archangels occupy the highest domains of this angelic hierarchy. They too have tasks similar to those of the common angels, but their duties are even higher and more important. They are the task of contemplating God, day and night, glorifying Him incessantly by preserving and protecting His mystery. Their own names suggest their roles and their nature: all end with "El", which signifies "God".

The task of the three Archangels, in addition to contemplation of God, is to communicate His Will to man in various ways, to be an inspiration for human beings, and the catalysts of divine grace for them.

Saint Michael

Michael is the fighter fighting against rebel angels who are led by Lucifer. It was Michael who led the heavenly hosts in the war leading to the expulsion of rebellious angels from Paradise, and since then, he has continued to stand up as God's defender against Evil and its deceptions. The theater for this new battle is no longer heaven, forbidden to Satan, but the souls of we humans, constantly targeted by the flattery of Evil, and instigated at every moment to rebel against God. The Devil tries to convince men that God is a tyrant, who limits their freedom and their own full realization in the creation. The Archangel Michael is sent from heaven to protect men and guide them, to teach them to distinguish good from evil and truth from falsehood.

His skills as a judge of souls have also made him the patron of all trades that involve the use of assessments, such as traders, pharmacists, pastry chefs. He is also patron saint of the Police.

St. Gabriel

In the biblical tradition, he was considered to be one of the angels closest to the throne of God, to the point of being referred to as

"the left hand of God".

In the Christian tradition, Gabriel is particularly remembered as a messenger. He revealed the future birth of John the Baptist to Zechariah, he appeared in a dream to Joseph to make him desist from repudiating Mary, because her pregnancy was the work of the Holy Spirit, and, naturally, because she was the bearer of a miraculous conception and of the birth of Jesus. In this case, more than in any other, he consecrated himself as being the messenger of God. It was Gabriel who appeared to Mary and told her that God had chosen her as the mother for His only Son. No imposition, no obligation. Only a request, addressed by one of the most powerful angels to a simple and humble girl. The role of Gabriel was therefore pivotal. He brings God's message to us, making it understandable to us, helping us to listen with a pure heart and to accept the will of the Almighty.

Gabriel is considered to be the protector of those who work in communications, postmen, ambassadors, journalists and couriers.

St. Raphael

Raphael is the Archangel whose mission is to bring healing. In fact, his name derives from Hebrew and means "God's Doctor". In the Bible, he is among the angels closest to the throne of God, who was chosen by Tobias to guide him on his journey to collect the payments left by his father. During the journey, Raphael, in human form, found a suitable bride for Tobias and restored the sight to the boy's father.

Raphael was considered to be the patron of conjugal love, of young people, engaged couples, spouses, pharmacists, educators, travelers and refugees. Often depicted with a jar containing medicines and fishes, he is the patron of pharmacists, travelers and refugees.

His role as a healer, as "God's Doctor" should always be interpreted as the will to heal the soul, to relieve it from its suffering and make it best disposed to welcome God. By restoring sight to the father of Tobias, Raphael opened his eyes to the Truth of the Almighty, just as, by driving out the demons that persecuted the girl who was promised to him, he made their marriage and their love possible. That is why he is also considered to be a protector of engaged couples and of conjugal love. Both are symbolic and meaningful healings, therefore. The power of the Archangel Raphael heals blindness, like the faith and love that priests show us and communicate to us every day opens our eyes to God. Equally, divine intervention, through its emissary, dissipates the clouds between men and women, makes them pure and suitable for union, in the name of a love blessed by God and by the Church.

Through St. Raphael, the healing and purifying power of God's love descends on us, making us more worthy, and closer to God.
